“Hidden Places”

Another day of poetry and reflection with

Maurice Whelan

People have bucket lists - places they want to visit, things they want to do before they die. These places are usually exotic locations on earth; some wish to travel to the moon or Mars.

Some people have bucket lists of internal places, states of mind or being which they know exist but have never been explored.

Literature allows examination of these hidden places and acts as a guide in their exploration.

At the Indigiscapes Centre, Runnymede Road Capalaba

On Saturday 28th February 8:30am to 3:30pm

“This was an invitation to enter into the world of poetry, a realm quite different from our ordinary lives, and offering us something unique in terms of an experience of ourselves and others.”

“After a pleasant lunch and stroll around the environs and discussion with others we reconvened in a large circle to reflect. This was a very interesting experience as the circle can enhance a discussion rather than a podium-led question and answer session. It was fascinating to hear the views and ideas of a diverse group of people from different backgrounds.”

Paul Coombe, past president AAGP.

Cost: $120, Concession $55. This includes morning tea and lunch.

This event is jointly sponsored by The Sea of Faith in Australia and the Australian Association of Group Psychotherapists

“The group itself creates at its core something individual and special; both greater and unique to the clients comprising the group” - www.groupanalysis.net.au

“...the “Sea of Faith”, a secular group interested in, as far as I can tell, life and free discussion as opposed to a narrowing down of ideologies” Paul Coombe, Past President, AAGP.
